HOLIDAY GIFTS For the Million at O. Fox's

I will state to my friends and the publicin general, in justice to myself, that one of our citizens by the name of Edward Savage, who professes to be what he does har caused to be published each an advertisement about O. Fox's Gift Book Store and Brass Jeweiry.

Bo you think much of such a man who trys to in jure one who never in any way tried to injure him it is nothing more than jealony in business mattern.

Now I will state that for the peat three passes my Miscellaneous Book trade, and such I presume has been the case with Mr. havage's, has been very small, scarsely nothing to speak of. And where has the trade gone? To Now York and Philadelphia, to the Gift Book Store of Evans, and in protection to myself, when I was in New Hork I made arrangements with one of the large st publishing beamed in New York to get me a catalogue, which has been published. Now I will state to my friends and customers of the Western States, that I have as fine Gold Jewelry as any house has, and the largest finest and best selected stock of any house in the City.

In a few days I shall receive a very fine addition to my present such in the way of Silver Tea Sets, Gold Watches, Silver Watches, and all kinds of the best selected stock, and all parties buying books from me I will give them 25 per cost, off on my Catalogue, which is better than our friend Savage's 10 per central If they do not wish to take their gift. My Gift Book business is conducted on a different plan from other houses.—At the time the gift is given I will show them the blank book in which the gift is written in black ink, and numbered to correspond with the number on the goods and specifying the article, and if they are not stated with their citis I will take of 25 per cent. If now a single stated of the per set of the province of the store is conducted on a different plan from other houses.—At the time the gift is given I will show then the blank book in which the gift is written in black ink, and numbered to correspond with the number on the goods and specifying
